JEWEST THROTEVERS.

Where is my heart? Alas! not here. It wander'd from my careful kreping. And "stole away" one Su smer e eve When I was too securely sleeping.

I've lest my heart. What must be done? The plain I can not live without it; Fernianice, some day it may return, If I don't say too much about it.

For hearts, I know, are so perverse, That if they think you arise them highly, They give themselves concelled airs, And very often treat you tilely.

The heart I've lost is warm and light, And has a trick of loving blindly, If you should find the wayward sprite, I hope you'll treat it very kindly.

Should you neglect it, 'twill rebel, And surely die if you are cruel, But if you understand it well, Xou'll find this heart a priceless jewol. So if it chance to come your way, Don't keep it there at any cost. Unless you'll use it tenderly. But send me back the heart I've lost!

Peculiar Climate and Vegetation of Japan Japan, says an American writing from the almost terra incognita, is certainty a peculiar country in its camate and vegitation. We are now at the middle of May, but I am still wearing my winter clothing. It is hardly comfortable in my room this evening without a fire, and we have had fires morning and evening for the week past. The thermometer was as low as 44 two mornings in that time. Yet the barley is turning yellow, wheat is headed:

barley is turning yellow, wheat is headed; we have had our green peas and might have had them earlier if we had planted them ourselves. Strawberries are ripe and very abundant—but such strawberries! They have no juice and are utterly tasteless, Cultivation might improve them possibly. Raspberries will be ripe in a few days, and I suspect they are no letter yet there are Asspherries will be ripe in a few days, and I suspect they are no better, yet there are some deciduous trees that have only just leaved out. But what they lack in fruit, just now, we make up in mosquitoes.

My window opens into an old Buddhist cemetery. The monuments are square shafts of stone resting on pedestals. The pedestals have little basins cut in them to hold water, which forms part of the funeral ablutions and are dilicently appalled by a held, headed which forms part of the funeral ablutions and are diligently supplied by a hald-headed priest and his attendant, who are wholly unmindful of the great crop of large speckled-leg mosquitoes they are raising, converting, in fact, every dead native into a capbearer of poison. If it be not too irreverent, I would say, that it is no wonder that mosquitoes thus "manured in the hill," should attain a size something less than small humming-birds, and driven into my window by the south wind, should sit all night on my mosquito netting singing their grave-yard choruses. Nice little centipedes, five or six inches long, go burrowing around grave-yard choruses. Nice little centipedes, five or six inches long, go burrowing around in crack and cranny. Snakes, several fest in length, walk into your door-yard without "by your leave," crawl up the rafters of any open shed or out-building in pursuit of rats. Snakes, though abundant, are generally barmless. There is a small adder of venomous bite. Thus far in my experience I must pronounce these islands tolerably free of disgusting reptiles and insects.

INVENTION FOR CUTTING FILES BY MACHIN-INVENTION FOR CUTTING FILES BY MACHIN-ERY.—At a recent meeting of the Institution of Mechanical Engineers, London, a machine for cutting files, a French invention, was exhibited and described by Mr. Greenwood. He said the chisels could cut five times as many files as by hand, without being re-sharpened. The teeth cut on the files were raised with reflect recolarity and means raised with perfect regularity, and were fully better than those made on hand-made files. Twelve of such machines are now in operation at Douey, France, and one in Brussels, Belgium; and the relative cost for cutting files by them was eight cents per dozen—by hand, sixty-four cents. One of the engineers present said he had been engaged In file-cutting for twenty-five years, and he could state that this machine could cut as good files as those made by hand, if it were well attended. In most of the machines heretofore made the idea eliminated in them was an iron hand holding a chisel, and an iron hammer striking blows on it. The vibration of the chisel, by this mode, caused irregularity in the teeth. In the machine in question, the blow is given by the pressure of a flat steel spring pressing upon the top of a vertical alide, at the lower end of which the chisel is firmly fixed. This slide is actuated by a cam, which makes about 1,000 revolutions per minute, and obviates all in file-cutting for twenty-five years, and he revolutions per minute, and obviates all irregular vibrations.

THE GREAT WORK OF TUNNELING MOUNT Casis.—This gigantic work will abridge by twelve or fourteen hours, the distance be-tween the Italian Peninsula and Western Europe. It was begun three years ago.
The two extremities are at Bardonneche, in Piedmont, and at Modane, in Savoy. The whole distance to be cleared amounts to thirteen kilometers, of which one only is completed, 600 meters at Bardonneche, and 400 at Modane. At this rate thirty-nine years would be required to complete the work were it not for the engine invested by Messrs. Grandis, Grattoni & Sommeiller, by the help of which it is calculated that this magnificent operation will be brought to a termination in about a sixth of the time. termination in about a sixth of the time. This is always supposing that no unforeseen obstacles present themselves at a depth of 8,916 feet (French) beneath the earth's surface, for every step in advance is nearly equivalent to a step downward. The new perforator will be in complete action by the end of the present month, and the most sanguine hopes are entertained of a triumphant result.

The Aut of Dising Economically at a Horse.—If you have a taste for delicacies and diplomacy, you can slip a quarter into your hand and then fumble for a moment with the back part of your cost collar—the quarter some way disappears, and John will expedite things for you in a most mysterious manner. But a still better plan is to place your quarter on the table under an inverted wine-glass. The glass plays the part of a convex lens; the quarter assumes gigantic disappears and John takes if the tic dimensions, and John takes it to be a half dollar. The exertions that he makes to secure it are really surprising. You get we'l along with your lish before your neighbor's soup-plate a removed, and the dessert chases up chicken with amazing rapidity. Then at the close of the repast, if you are an artist, and wish to catch the expression of a deep disappointment, just remove the glass, return the quarter to your pocket, and walk off un-concernedly. John has had his reward; he has enjoyed the pleasure of anticipation.

Ayrecting Scree is a Vinoinia Court. In Richmond, Va., last week, one J. N. Gill was tried for stabbing a watchman, and was found not guilty. The verdict was received by the large crowd with applause, when the Judge ordered two men, who appeared to be the most excited, to be arrested, but on ascertaining that one of the offenders was the young man's father, and the other a dear friend of the family, he discharged them. The sister of the young man and his affisanced bride were both in Court, and, upon hearing the verdict, both acreamed aloud. The interded humband.

Friday's New York Tribene says of last week's Bank-statement in that city:

The Bank-statement was more favorable than was anticipated. The decrease in Loans exhibits a conservative action on the part of the Bank Managars, and the Specie reserve is well maintained in view of the hare shipment of Specie and the Drafts on this market from Beston, both amounting to nearly $2, $50,000 during the week. The decrease in Deposits, though large, is the natural consequence of the contraction of the Leans and the loss of Specie. The Banks, during the week, have been freely accommodating their correspondents in the interior and south, so that the contractions of Loans much have come almost entirely from the streets.

The following is a comparative statement of the

The following is a comparative statement of the condition of the Banks of the city of New York, August 25 and September 1:

The same number of the Triums observes concerning Money market opens this week with rather less activity, and no change in rates. The demand is good among the stock charge, but in mercantile circles it is mederate. The Backs have generally withdrawn facilities from the street and extended them to their regular dealers. Call Leans are 655; per cent., mostly at 7 per cent. Paper in the street, with a moderate apply, is 65627 per cent. for short, and 7569 per cent of long maturities.

We hear of no Gold engaged for the Boston stemier, and there will be no drait of consequence this week to affect the Bank-statement of Monday next. The bars by the California stemmer have been said at about here cent, premium for 900 fine. Mint bars are worth 5563-16 per cent, premium. The market for fareign Exchange has recovered its firmness, and Bankers' Sterling is held to day at 1095-2510. Commercial and bank signistures are 1095-2510. Commercial and bank signistures are 1095-2510. Frames are Statespas. Free years are 5.485-286-286. The two less for the Boston steamer is not yet large.

In Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, Money is in more demand, owing to the increase of business, and rates are rather higher. The market continues easy, however, in all of those cities, and first-class Paper rules at about 625 per cent.

In St. Louis Bankable funds and Currency are quite scarce, and Money in brist demand, the Banke making no expansion. Eastern Exchange is firm at 8, prem. ing Money matters in New York on Monday:

That we have succeeded in producing a material that will, practically, form a fire, water, weather

The materials of which it is composed combine every requisite for a practically imperishable roof, which will withstand the sudden and frequent charges of any climate without sustaining injury.
